

This work is a response to the rising demands since March 2020, on my son & I. Here my son is on display with objects from our last pre-lockdown trip out, to mark our increasing sense of invisibility. We grew irritated with each while other making this, and blame the extra pressure to be enjoying ourselves.