

Maternity Leaves documents a series of short walks exploring the space of motherhood. As I dared myself to take a few more steps away from my baby than was comfortable, my choices were shaped by the real and imagined reactions of passers by. The limits of socially acceptable maternal distance became a playful provocation.