

This scroll measuring 150 feet long is a performance object of grave rubbings labeled “mother”. This performance was a personal and collective means of expressing grief over the deaths of millions of women and mothers due to COVID - 19. The Mother Rubbings asks: How can art objects facilitate the communal grieving process?